COMMON ORDER

These three Criminal Appeals are directed against the judgments of conviction and sentence made in Spl.S.C.No.18 of 2018, dated 30.12.2022, on the file of the Principal Special Court for Exclusive trial of cases under the POCSO Act, 2012, Sivagangai, in Spl.S.C.No.84 of 2023, dated 25.02.2025 on the file of the Principal Special Court for Exclusive trial of cases under the POCSO Act, Theni and in Spl.S.C.No.77 of 2024, dated 11.08.2025 on the file of Fast Track Mahila Court, Dindigul respectively for the offence under the POCSO Act.

2. In the present three appeals, the appellants filed applications seeking suspension of sentence under Section 430(2) of the BNSS. Upon hearing these matters, this Court raised a query regarding whether the de facto complainant is a necessary party in Criminal Appeals challenging convictions under the POCSO Act and in applications for suspension of sentence.

3. The learned Counsel for the appellants would submit that notice is not necessary as neither POCSO Act nor the Rules framed thereunder does not provide for the same. But the learned Government Advocate (CrI.Side) would submit that notice is necessary since amended Section 439(1-A) Cr.P.C., provides notice before granting bail to a person accused of an offence under Section 376(3) or 376-AB or Section 376-DA or 376-DB I.P.C. Hence, this Court heard the arguments of the learned Counsel appearing for the appellants and the learned Government Advocate(CrI.Side) appearing for the State.

4. The sole preliminary issue to be determined is whether the defacto complainant is a necessary party in a criminal appeal challenging a conviction under the POCSO Act and in an application for suspension of sentence, and if so, the manner of their involvement.

5. Following the U.N., Declaration of Basic Principles of Justice for Victims of Crime and Abuse of Power, 1985, victimology jurisprudence has evolved globally. Consequently, the Code of Criminal Procedure had undergone amendments to recognise the victim's rights in the Indian Criminal Jurisprudence System. In Jagjeet Singh and Others Vs. Ashish Mishra and another reported in AIR 2022 SC 1918, three Judge Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court observed that the definition of victim under Section 2(wa) Cr.P.C., has given a wide and expansive meaning to the expression “Victim”, which means a person who has suffered any loss or injury caused by reason of the act or omission for which the accused person has been charged and the expression “Victim” includes his or her guardian or legal heir. It will be useful to refer the following passages:

“22. This Court, in Mallikarjun Kodagali (Dead) v. State of Karnataka & Ors<sup>5</sup>, while dealing with questions regarding a victim’s right to file an appeal under section 372 of Cr.P.C, observed that there was need to give adequate representation to victims in criminal proceedings. The Court therein affirmed the victim’s right to file an appeal against an order of acquittal. In Mallikarjun Kodagali, though the Court was primarily concerned with a different legal issue, it will be fruitful in the present context to take note of some of the observations made therein:

“3. What follows in a trial is often secondary victimisation through repeated appearances in court in a hostile or a semi hostile environment in the courtroom. Till sometime back, secondary victimisation was in the form of aggressive and intimidating cross-examination, but a more humane interpretation of the provisions of the Evidence Act, 1872 has made the trial a little less uncomfortable for the victim of an offence, particularly the victim of a sexual crime. In this regard, the judiciary has been proactive in ensuring that the rights of victims are addressed, but a lot more needs to be done. Today, the rights of an accused far outweigh the rights of the victim of an offence in many respects. There needs to be some balancing of the concerns and equalising their rights so that the criminal proceedings

8. The rights of victims, and indeed victimology, is an evolving jurisprudence and it is more than appropriate to move forward in a positive direction, rather than stand still or worse, take a step backward. A voice has been given to victims of crime by Parliament and the judiciary and that voice needs to be heard, and if not already heard, it needs to be raised to a higher decibel so that it is clearly heard.” (Emphasis Supplied)

23. It cannot be gainsaid that the right of a victim under the amended Cr.P.C. are substantive, enforceable, and are another facet of human rights. The victim’s right, therefore, cannot be termed or construed restrictively like a brutum fulmen. We reiterate that these rights are totally independent, incomparable, and are not accessory or auxiliary to those of the State under the Cr.P.C. The presence of ‘State’ in the proceedings, therefore, does not tantamount to according a hearing to a ‘victim’ of the crime.

24. A ‘victim’ within the meaning of Cr.P.C. cannot be asked to await the commencement of trial for asserting his/her right to participate in the proceedings. He/She has a legally vested right to be heard at every step post the occurrence of an offence. Such a ‘victim’ has unbridled participatory rights from the stage of investigation till the culmination of the proceedings in an appeal or revision. We may hasten to clarify that ‘victim’ and ‘complainant/informant’ are two distinct connotations in criminal jurisprudence. It is not always necessary that the complainant/informant is also a 'victim', for even a stranger to the act of crime can be an 'informant', and similarly, a 'victim' need not be the complainant or informant of a felony.

25. The above stated enunciations are not to be conflated with certain statutory provisions, such as those present in Special Acts like the Scheduled Cast and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, where there is a legal obligation to hear the victim at the time of granting bail. Instead, what must be taken note of is that; First, the Indian jurisprudence is constantly evolving, whereby, the right of victims to be heard, especially in cases involving heinous crimes, is increasingly being acknowledged; Second, where the victims themselves have come forward to participate in a criminal proceeding, they must be accorded with an opportunity of a fair and effective hearing. If the right to file an appeal against acquittal, is not accompanied with the right to be heard at the time of deciding a bail application, the same may result in grave miscarriage of justice. Victims certainly cannot be expected to be sitting on the fence and watching the proceedings from afar, especially when they may have legitimate grievances. It is the solemn duty of a court to deliver justice before the memory of an injustice eclipses.

6. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has categorically held that the victim has unbridled participatory rights from the stage of investigation till the culmination of the proceedings in an appeal or revision.

7. The learned Counsel for the appellant in Crl.A.(MD)No.949 of 2025 would submit that the above decision cannot be made applicable to the case on hand, as the Hon'ble Apex Court has not dealt with the scope of appeal against conviction filed by the accused under the POCSO Act, without impleading the victim, parent or guardian, but it was held that the victim is entitled to be heard at the stage of adjudication of bail application of an accused.

8. The learned Counsel for the appellants in other two appeals would rely on the decision of the Division Bench of Rajasthan High Court in Pooja Gurjar and Others Vs. State of Rajasthan in D.B.Criminal Reference No.1 of 2023, dated 19.12.2023, wherein the Division Bench attempted to interpret the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jagjeet Singh's case referred supra, has held that mandate of Jagjeet Singh's case that the victim has unbridled participatory rights in criminal proceedings does not mean that the victim must replace or substitute the State as the prosecuting agency nor that the victim must be impleaded as a party to the proceedings so as to make the victim answerable in all aspects. The Division Bench has further observed that Jagjeet Singh's case only provides that the victim has vested right to be heard at every stage of proceedings and that therefore, the victim is not a necessary party and is not required to be impleaded as party-respondent in bail applications under Sections 437, 438, 439 I.P.C.

9. The learned Counsel would further submit that above judgment in Pooja Gurjar's case and the POCSO Act makes it clear that the Court is neither statutorily obligated to send notice to the victim girl nor directed the accused to implead the victim girl as a party to hear and decide the bail applications and appeal bail applications.

10. At the outset, since the present issue relates to POCSO Act, it is necessary to clarify one aspect that the victim we are now referring, would only denote the defacto complainant or the parent or the guardian of the victim girl and not the the victim girl herself, who need not be impleaded or heard in the case.

11. Moreover in Jagjeet Singh's case referred above, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has dealt with an appeal filed by the defacto complainant challenging the order granting bail by the High Court. While recognising the rights of the victim to take part in the Court proceedings, has held that the victim or the defacto complainant has legally vested right to be heard at every step post the occurrence of an offence and such a person has unbridled participatory rights from the stage of investigation till the culmination of the proceedings in an appeal or revision.

12. Before entering into further, it is necessary to refer Sections 39 and 40 of POCSO Act and the relevant Sub-Rules in Rule 4 of POCSO Rules and the amended Section 439(1-A) Cr.P.C., and the guideline 2.2 of Model Guidelines issued by the Ministry of Women and Child Development, Government of India in exercise of the powers conferred under Section 39 of POCSO Act:

POCSO Act is defective as the victim has not been made as party in the appeal, by observing that the trial, conviction and sentence are matters primarily between the accused person and the State and the statutory provisions for institution of the appeal and the hearing thereof, do not, in their terms, enjoin impleadment of the victim in the appeals and taking note of the principles relating to protection of dignity and privacy and modality of ensuring those values, has concluded that the victim is not a necessary party to a Criminal Appeal from conviction for offences against women or child punishable under the provision of I.P.C., or POCSO Act or any other penal provision which will apply relating to offences affecting human body against any “woman” and / or “child” and that no such appeal would be defective in the absence of implementation of the victim.

19. A learned Single Judge of Bombay High Court in Rohit Vs. the State of Maharashtra in Crl.A.(ST) No.8953 of 2023, dated 10.11.2023, raised a query as to why the victim has been made party-respondent in the criminal appeal challenging for the offences under POCSO Act as well as applications seeking suspension of sentence. A reply was made that the victim was made party in terms of law laid down by the Bombay High Court in Arjun Kishanrao Malge case, referred supra.

20. At the outset, it is pertinent to mention that there is no such direction in Arjun Kishanrao Malge case, for impleading a victim in the appeal as well as in the suspension application, but mandated the accused that when an application is made before the Court on behalf of the accused, it shall be the duty of the accused to issue notice of hearing of such application to the child's family, or the guardian, along with all relevant documents and the record necessary for effective participation in the proceedings. But the learned Singh Judge in Rohit case above referred, referring to the said decision in Arjun Kishanrao Malge case and also the decision of the Calcutta High Court Division Bench in Ganesh Das's case referred supra, has held that child or child's parents or guardian etc., is not a necessary party to Criminal Appeal from conviction under the provisions of I.P.C., or the POCSO Act and the child or child's parents or guardian etc., are entitled to be apprised of the status of the proceedings which includes appeals. But the learned Judge has then rightly observed that the presence of the child's parents and not of child is obligatory in terms of the directions issued in Arjun Kishanrao Malge case and that the SJPU or local police shall, therefore, ensure that child should not be instructed to attend the Court.

21. Regarding Section 389 of the Code, the learned Judge has observed that notice will have to be issued to the child's parents or guardian etc., in terms of the directions issued by the Division Bench of that Court in the case of Arjun Kishanrao Malge for the purpose of apprising them of the status of the case, but without insisting for their presence in the Court. In Arjun Kishanrao Malge case, the Division Bench has nowhere observed that the presence of the child's parents or guardian etc., must be insisted in the hearing of the application for suspension of sentence, or hearing of any other application.

22. Generally, in police-instituted criminal cases, the victim/de facto complainant is not made a party. In criminal trials under the IPC, POCSO Act, or other special enactments, impleading the victim/de facto complainant as a party is uncommon. However, with court permission, they can engage counsel to assist the Public Prosecutor/Assistant Public Prosecutor under Section 301(2) CrPC, where the counsel's role is limited and prosecution control remains with the Public Prosecutor/Assistant Public Prosecutor. Section 302 CrPC empowers the Judicial Magistrate to permit the de facto complainant to conduct the prosecution independently through private counsel if they demonstrate inadequate prosecution by the Assistant Public Prosecutor.

23. Given the availability of prosecution and defense evidence, as well as the trial court's judgment, the appellate court can decide on the conviction's validity by hearing the prosecutor and defense counsel. The Division Bench of the Calcutta High Court, considering principles of dignity, privacy, and modalities to ensure these values, held that the victim is not a necessary party in criminal appeals arising from convictions for offenses against women or children under the IPC or POCSO Act.

24. As already pointed out, the learned Single Judge in Bombay High Court in Rohit case, has observed that child and child's parents or guardian is not a necessary party to a Criminal Appeal from conviction for the offences under the provisions of I.P.C., or POCSO Ac, but he would add that the child or child's parents or guardians are entitled to be apprised of the status of the proceedings, which includes appeal.

25. Based on the aforementioned decisions and legal provisions, this Court holds that impleading the victim or their parents/guardians is not mandatory in criminal appeals. However, if they wish to participate, they should be permitted to do so and be heard alongside the Public Prosecutor and defence counsel.

26 Turning to the application for suspension of sentence under Section 389 CrPC, it's pertinent to note that Section 439 CrPC was amended by the Criminal Law Amendment Act 2018, introducing Section 439(1-A), which came into force on April 20, 2019. This provision mandates the presence of the informant or their authorized representative during the hearing of bail applications for offenses under Sections 376(3), 376AB, 376DA, or 376DB IPC, particularly those involving children under 16 or 12 years of age.

27. The Division Bench of the Bombay High Court in Arjun Kishanrao Malge's case aptly observed that it agreed with the contention that, similar to IPC offenses specified in Section 439(1-A) CrPC, the presence of the informant or their authorized representative should be mandatory during bail hearings under the POCSO Act. This aligns with the objectives of Section 40 of the POCSO Act read with Rules 4(13) and 4(15) of the POCSO Rules.

28. As noted earlier, the Division Bench of the Chhattisgarh High Court in Akash Chandrakar's case correctly held that notice to the victim's parents, guardian, informant, or trusted support person is essential when considering suspension of sentence in a pending appeal. Notably, Section 31 of the POCSO Act provides that the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, including provisions for bail and bonds, applies to proceedings before a Special Court under POCSO. This section ensures consistency and fairness by integrating existing criminal procedural laws into the POCSO framework. Section 42 of the POCSO Act serves as an alternate punishment provision by stipulating that if an act is punishable under both the POCSO Act and certain sections of the Indian Penal Code, the offender is to be punished under the law that provides the greater degree of punishment. This section applies when a single act or omission qualifies as an offence under both the POCSO Act and specific, listed sections of the IPC. Given these provisions and considering that suspension of sentence under Section 389 CrPC is akin to appeal bail, the principle under Section 439A CrPC—requiring notice to the informant for specific IPC offenses against children—should logically extend to both regular and appeal bail applications under the POCSO Act.

29. Before suspending the sentence, it is essential to hear the victim's family regarding any potential harassment, threats, or coercion by the accused post-conviction. Without notice and hearing, the appellate court may remain uninformed about crucial developments. While acknowledging that some victims' families may be traumatized and unwilling to participate, others may actively engage to ensure justice is served. Therefore, hearing the victim's side is necessary before granting appeal bail.

30. Based on the foregoing, this Court holds that involving the victim's parents, de facto complainant, or guardian is essential in both regular and appeal bail applications filed by individuals accused of POCSO Act offenses.

31. It is crucial to ensure the victim is not made a party in any proceedings or applications under the POCSO Act, and no direct notice should be served to them. When involving the victim's family or de facto complainant, their identity and details should be protected, and only necessary information should be disclosed without revealing their identity.

32. In conclusion, it is clarified that involving the victim or their parents is not necessary in criminal appeals challenging the convictions under the POCSO Act. However, their impleadment is essential in regular bail applications under Section 483 BNSS (Section 439 Cr.P.C.) and suspension of sentence application under Section 430 BNSS (Section 389 Cr.P.C.,) It is further clarified that the victim should not be directly involved or served notice in any proceedings. Instead, notice should be served to the victim's parents or complainant through the address provided by the State Counsel. To protect the victim's interest, the Courts may direct the District Legal Services Authority or State Legal Service Authority or the High Court Legal Services Committee to provide legal assistance through their panal Advocates.
